Continuation of 3. NOTE: the amendment of claims 1, 3-4, 8, 11, and 13 might raise new issue that would require further consideration prior making decision.

Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: the applicant argues in page 9 that the claims are now amended in according to the 35 U.S.C. 101 requirement under the patentable subject matter wherein the transform method is applied to the image data. Thus, the transformation of image data is a practical application.

The examiner respectfully submits that pre-emptive a mathematical transformation method for image data would not constitute as a practical application wherein the image data is just the data applied to the mathematical transformation method. Clearly the claims do not include any "practical application" wherein the practical application is not the same as the type of data is used for pre-emptive mathematical transformation. Therefore, claims 1-9, 11, and 13 still have issue with 35 U.S.C. 101 under the patentable subject matter.
